The Question as Discussed by a Commercial Authority.

THE SPRINGER PLAN EXPLAINED

The Policy Adopted by the Democratic Majority in Congress of Attacking the McKinley Bill in Detail is Designed to Force a Sectional Quarrel Between Protectionists and Bring About Absolute Free Trade and a Surrender of Our Markets to Eu-

Boston, Feb. 11 .- The Boston Commercial Bulletin says: To the free trader anxious to defeat in detail where he has been repulsed in general the appeal to the different desires of the different sections is the most convenient and deadly of weapons. The Massachusetts manufacturer does not read the local Ohio newspapers; the Ohio farmer does not read the political organs of Boston.

It is therefore quite possible for the free trade orator to promise in Ohio a cut in duties on manufactured goods, and in Massachusetts a removal of the duties on coal, iron ore and wool. Promises of free binder-twine were made all over the West, but were strangely absent in speeches from the champions of the same cause in Plymouth and New Redferi Bedford.

Bedford. When the Mills bill, the free trade measure of tariff reform, was passed, neither coal nor iron ore was made free. Tennessee and Alabama would not allow it. Free coal would be a benefit to Canada. It is absurd, however, to surrender our markets to Canada without. render our markets to Canada without demanding from her an equal measure of freedom. In the last fiscal year we imported 7,503,537 tons of coal; we exported 2,399,039 tons, of which 1,593,852 tons went to Canada. Nova Scotia coal is available for New England, but Pennsylvania coal must be bought by Ontario. Reciprocity would give Pennsylvania tario. Reciprocity would give Pennsylvania the Canadian market in exchange for the New England market. Free trade would surrender the New England market and ask for nothing in return.

Now, though free coal would be an advantage to New England manufactures, as would to a less extent free iron ore, we have no natural gas, no contigu-ous deposits of coal, limestone, and ore, and it is impossible for New England to compete with more favored localities in compete with more invoiced localities in the cruder forms of iron manutacture. Alabama makes pig iron and Massa-chusetts watch springs. In carefly similar fashion the crude forms of cotton manufactures, the spinning of coarse yarns, and the weaving of coarse cloths are slipning from usin spite of free raw are slipping from us in spite of free raw material. The cotton industry of Massa-chusetts is increasing as a whole as the iron industry of Massachusetts is increasing as a whole, but the cruder creasing as a whole, but the cruder forms of both are dying out under the pressure of competition with other parts of the country with greater natural advantages. No change in duties can bring them back, and those who make this claim for political purposes are perfectly aware of that fact.

The removal of the duty on wool would be a boon to the American woolen manufacturer. An entire exemption manufacturer. An entire exemption from all local taxation would also be a boon. Free power furnished by the state would also be a boon. It spite of the duty on wool, however, the manufacturing of wool is increasing yearly. Duties are not levied for the benefit of one state, but for the nation, and until the Western farmer believes that the the Western farmer believes that the removal of the duty on wool can be made without injury to him it is idle to expect him to endure free trade in his product while granting protection on Free wool would drive the merino Free wool would drive the merino sheep out of existence, certainly in all states east of the Mississippi. These states are already losing their flocks yearly, thanks to the increasing flocks in Montana, Utah, Wyoming and other Western states and territories. The Ohio farmer's future lies in mutton sheep, not wool sheep, and these we believe he might raise, and with profit, if lieve he might raise, and with profit, if there were no duty on wool. If the duty is to be taken from wool, however, it must be with the wool growers' co-

The free trader's dearest hope is to force a sectional quarrel between protectionists, and then to bring about absolute free trade, which, as we have already pointed out, means an annulment of all reciprocity treaties, a surgarder of our markets to Europe, and. render of our markets to Europe, and, more than this, a backward step and the re-establishment of European in-stead of American influence, trade, and prestige in the republics lying to the

The McKinley tariff, in spite of some serious mistakes, has done much to advance American industries by a great enlargement of the free list, as well as by the retention of Protective duties. It has not, however, damaged as the Free Trader would damage, native and natur al industries by further enlarging the free list.
Tariff destruction is easy when made on sectional lines for political purposes. Tariff construction is difficult. In either case the country should be considered as a whole, and it is not the part of the most prosperous State in the Union, from pure selfishness, to demand a tariff in which the States which have stood by her in her quarrely are entired. stood by her in her quarrels are entire-ly ignored, and the States that have opposed her interests are solely considered.

Mr. Heinlein's Bill Passes

Columbus, O., Feb, 11.-Mr, Heinlein's house bill amending subdivision five of section 5190 passed the house to-day, The amendment permits either party to present written instructions on matters of law to the trial judge and request the same to be given or retused before the arguments begin. This is intended to take the place of lengthy discussion, and permit the attorneys to know how the court will decide and charge in regard to a controlling principle of law, thus enabling them to conform their arguments

Pittsburgh, PA., Feb. 11.-It has just been developed that Miss Alice Mitchell, the Memphis, Tenn., girl who mur dered her friend Freda Ward, had been carrying on a correspondence with Thomas L. Reger, a young man of this. city, for six months under the name of her victim. Young Regordame to Pitts-burgh from West Virginia last spring, and having plenty of time on his hands, advertised in a matrimonial paper for a young lady correspondent. Among the answers was one from Miss Mitchell, who gave Miss Ward's name. Reger never knew he was corresponding with Miss Mitchell until after the tragedy. The day before the murder was com-mitted Reger answered Miss Mitchell's last letter, which lad been received a mitted Reger answered Miss Mitchell's last letter, which had been received a few days previous. He addressed it, as usual, to Miss Freda Ward. 'The letter arrived on the day of the murder, and was turned over to the police.

At the request of the Memphis authorities Reger sent her last letter to Chief of Police Davis.

Reger is a steady young man and feels much put out over the affair. The Memphis police think there is a man behind the tragedy and Reger is a fraid he will

A PROPOSED COMBINE

Of the Farmers' Alliance and Or ganized Labor to Combat

THE FARREACHING COMBINATIONS

Oppressive Alike to Consumer and Producer"--- A Joint Conference held in Trades' Assembly Hall, and an Executive Committee Elected, to Meet Next Monday.

The long talked of combination of the Farmers' Alliance with the labor unions seems to be on the highroad to fulfilment. Yesterday afternoon, in accordance with a call from the state executive committee of the Farmers' Alliance, representatives of the Ohio and Marshall counties' plliance met in Trades Assembly hall the representatives of the assembly. The following alliance men were theret Ohio County-J. B. Garvin, Brice Supler, James Orrand M. L. Connelly. Marshall County-B. L. Crow, J. Allen, Frank Jones and C. V. Reilly, business agent.

Two committees from the Trades Assembly, the legislative committee and sembly, the legislative committee and the arbitration, met the farmers. The members of these committees were W. H. Reilly, William O'Noil, Alfred Lewis, Jerry Mead, Peter F. Farrel and G. Jackson, of the legislative committee, and Roman Dobler, I. M. Imhoff, Jerry Mead, John Menkemeyer, Thomas V. Salisbury and J. W. Redall of the arbitration committee.

"The following resolutions were read and adonted:

and adopted:
WHEREAS, There exists at the present time in this community combinations time in this community combinations far reaching and oppressive alike to consumer and producer that certainly demand immediate consideration, and Whenkas, To meet these combinations it is necessary that the producer and consumer come together for the purpose of correcting this evil, and we believe that the best way to reach this end is for the Farmers' Alliance and the O. V. T. and L. Assembly to unite the O. V. T. and L. Assembly to unite in a common effort toward this end, therefore be it Resolved, That the representatives of ach body here bring the matter before their respective societies, and arrange-ments be made for a series of joint meetings, either by committee or other-wise, to bring about an understanding for these purposes.

The conference elected the following executive committee: Brice Supler, J. B. Garvin and W. W. Foreman, of the Farmers' Alliance, and R. L. Dobler and J. H. Burtt, of the O. V. T. and L. Assembly. The committee will meet next Monday evening at the office of the Ohio Valley Farmer.

Arrangements for the holding of a state labor congress in the near inture are now being made, in which it is hoped the Farmers' Alliance, the Knights of Labor and the American Federation of Labor will take part.

One of the executive committee told an INTELLIGENCER reporter yesterday that the proposed organization is for the protection of the farmers and work ingmen's mutual interests. In other states, he said, the combination is both for industrial and political purposes, but at present the intention is to organize for the industrial welfare of the farmers and the workingmen.
